Ray Rinaldi, owner of Grace Studios and VSI, Lincoln Avenue in Carbondale, tells us he's moving Nov. 1 to 18.5. Main St., the site of the former Healey's drugstore. Choice location for Ray, considering he's in charge of the Carbondale bureau of the Scrantonian-Tribune just across he state etc. Joining him in the former Healey building is Caby McNerney, and her Nettue Walebel Shoppe, a former North Church Street business Good luck to 'em both in their new neighborhood!

A little bird told us Jaye Clark, our 'refunder lady' from 41st Street in Carbondale, who feeds her family on 58 a week, and who, was the subject of a page one interiew in the MIRROR two weeks ago, was interviewed on an area TV station as a result of our story. Right on!

Memo to Tom Rinaldi, Encore Theatre PR person: thank for the infore the talented Bob Stephens, of Travelers Insurance and keyboard fame, who's not the main accompants tor your December presentation of "Cabaret," but assistant pianist ading musical director Ed Schulde, and directing the chorus. the final work last week, according to city hall sources.

This work included tying in driveways and access roads and landscaping.

The finishing pave was put down on Salurday, Oct. 10.

The reconstruction of the street included new surface drains, curbs, and sidewalks, in addition to the complete rebuilding of the street surface itself.

The completion of the main West Side thoroughfare gives that side of the city a complete reconstruction of its three main streets. Fallbrook Street, Forty-second Street, and now Dundaff Street.

Work on the reconstruction of Gordon wenue has begun.

Prompted by an inquiry from a reader, the Carbondale MIRROR asked the city's administration if the city could use a police ing meters put up in downtown spots where Work on the reconstruction of Gordon Avenue has begun.

The main South Side street is the fifth city street to undergo complete reconstruction in the past several years.

Other streets reconstructed are: Church Street, Fallbrook Street, Forty-second Street, and, recently, Dundaff Street.

The city's managing director, Martin P. Judge, told the Carbondale MIRROR that for its police.

Since they started work in the fall, Judge said, that is all the contractor will pat down a temporary pave on sections of the street which are dug up.

Carbondale MIRROR asked the city's metring of city council sought to have park-administration if the city could use a police patrol dog.

Recently, the City of Scranton got two owas for its force and the Borough of Blakely recently had a fund drive to purchase one. Even the Borough of Wyalusing, in rural Bradford County, with its population of under 1,000 recently acquired a pair of dogs for its police.

But the City of Carbondale won't be joining the ranks of communities with patrol dogs— not for the moment.

"We don't have the facilities, "city managing director, told the Carbondale MIRROR again last week that the recent laying off of five public works department employes has curtailed the sought-after parking meter revenues from the missing meters. The solons reported that the city has spare meter heads since meters but up in downtours pot work the meters have been missing for some time.
